VMware Challenges

In the wake of Broadcom's acquisition of VMware, businesses are facing critical decisions. Broadcom has eliminated support for perpetual VMware licences, forcing a migration to subscription-based licences, resulting in huge cost increases and potentially changing its virtualisation infrastructure. Organisations must choose between surrendering their paid-for perpetual licences or finding alternatives. Support Revolution allows businesses to continue using VMware perpetual licences without being compelled to migrate. We provide ultra-responsive VMware support with superior SLAs, including resolution within two hours for critical issues.

Support Revolution Solution

Support Revolution offers VMware users a cost-effective alternative that maintains their existing infrastructure with high-quality, personalised support during this period of transition in the VMware landscape.

These benefits include:

- Cost savings: Clients can achieve substantial savings on their VMware software vs. significant increases associated with the move to subscription-based licences
- Keep your perpetual licences: Organisations can continue using their existing VMware perpetual licences without being forced to migrate to a subscription model
- Responsive support: Support Revolution provides ultra-responsive SLAs, including resolution within 2 hours for critical issues
- Comprehensive security: VMware security is available, offering a safe harbour while companies consider long-term options
- Personalised approach: Clients receive monthly reviews with an assigned Primary Support Engineer and quarterly meetings with a named Account Manager
- Flexibility: Support Revolution allows organisations to maintain their current VMware infrastructure while strategising their long-term virtualisation approach
- Experience: With over 27 years in the industry, Support Revolution brings extensive expertise to enterprise software support
